Our short-term study abroad programs are tailor-made for groups of students, academic, managerial, or corporate staff with an interest in a comprehensive international learning experience at Universidad EAFIT.

Our program aims at broadening the vision of its participants and promoting applied knowledge in different environments through direct contact with diverse cultures and organizations that positively impact our society.

• Program in Social Urbanism, Medellin City as a Living Laboratory. Monterrey Institute of Technology, Mexico.

• Fulbright-Hays Seminar Abroad: Climate Change and Sustainability in Colombia. United States

It has been a very enriching experience where I have been able to learn and see what the innovation movement is like in another country. I find it very interesting, and I have taken away many ideas, new proposals and the desire to continue working to boost the economy of my country”.

Josué Vizhñay,
MBA student at UTPL, Ecuador.

We have visited Comuna 13, where we have seen how Colombia takes art to another level. The classes and the teachers are excellent, they have taught us in very creative ways, and I am in love with the city. I hope to take classes here in the future”.

Valeria Luque,
student at Illinois University, participant in the CUIBE's Global Student Leadership Council Mission.

Our short-term programs are designed with four key components integrated through Experiential Learning:

1 Academic

Together, with the disciplinary knowledge of our schools and incidence centers, we offer high-quality courses.

2 Cultural

We promote immersive experiences for participants to learn about the cultures of the city and region.

3 Corporative

Being recognized as a key player in the urban and social transformation of the city, we enable contact with applied knowledge in organizations.

4 Networking

We promote the development of a network of international contacts and the enriching of perspectives through meetings with key people.

With our schools and centers, we can create together the program of your interest

The themes of our short-term study abroad programs are the result of the work of our five schools, which are home to our academic areas and programs, active learning spaces, research groups and laboratories, study and incidence centers.

EAFIT study and incidence centers are vehicles to connect our knowledge and capabilities with society through problem solving, innovation, social impact, and applied training in a wide range of disciplinary areas.

• Program in Project Management. UTPL. Ecuador

• Program in Innovation and Entrepreneurship. ESAN's MBA. Peru.

“What I like most about the city of Medellin is the strength of the Colombian people and the determination they have to leave the past behind and create a future for themselves that represents their culture with dignity and with their intelligence and their innovation. Thank you for welcoming me here. I really look forward to coming back and doing business with you and learning more about your culture”.

Neha Rastogi,

MBA student at Wharton School of the University of Pennsylvania.

“It has been an incredible experience because I was able to meet many new people, learn how they study international business and how they apply it to their lives in the United States. Being able to show them my city, the organizations we visited, and my university has been a pleasure and it is something I am very proud of”.

María Antonia Santos,

EAFIT student participating in CUIBE's Global Student Leadership Council Mission.
