

Call for Applications for Gender Studies Visiting Faculty

Visiting Faculty Stay at Sciences Po, Paris

Application deadline: September 11, 2023.

Applications are open for 1-semester stays planned in the 2024 Spring Semester or 2024 Fall Semester.

Sciences Po's Gender Studies Programme, with Université Paris Cité, is calling for applications for visiting faculty from around the world.

Sciences Po is an international research university, ranking among the finest institutions in the fields of humanities and social sciences.

In the Spring 2024 (2023-24 academic year) and Fall 2024 (2023-25 academic year), Sciences Po will open two visiting faculty positions for up to a semester-long (12-weeks minimum). This Visiting Stay aims at fostering interdisciplinary opportunities, encouraging the development of new partnerships for collaborative research, as well as facilitating the mobility of English-speaking and French-speaking gender studies researchers towards France.

At Sciences Po, Gender Studies are organised through the PRESAGE Programme, a cross-cutting programme bringing together researchers from all disciplinary research units. The visiting faculty will be hosted in one of the Science Po research units (an exhaustive list can be found here), and will benefit from the dynamic of the researchers with diverse disciplinary backgrounds specialised in gender studies through PRESAGE and its activities with Université Paris Cité within the Cité du genre.

The Visiting programme is open to academics at any career stage and in any discipline. We encourage researchers from all around the globe, especially from the Global South, to apply.

CONDITIONS

Visiting faculty will receive an overall monthly stipend of 4.000 euros (before taxes).

Visiting faculty are expected to teach one full course with a gender lens (12 x 2-hours sessions) over the semester. They are also expected to contribute actively to the research community they will join, and to deliver at least one Public Lecture (for both Sciences Po and Université Paris Cité students) during their stay.

Visiting faculty will be given access to an office space on campus, in the heart of Paris, to the Sciences Po library and other University facilities and to the research activity and events programme driven by the research unit they will be hosted in.

The stay is to be scheduled between January, 2024 and May/June, 2024, or between August/September, 2024 and December, 2024.

APPLICATION

Applicants must be current full-time permanent faculty members of their home university or research institute, hold a doctorate (or equivalent university degree), and have teaching experience.

Application materials include the following and must be submitted in English or in French:

- A statement of interest for the position ;
- A presentation of current and future research projects ;
- A proposed course to be taught in English or French, and a two-page, session-by-session description of each course's content, for the Undergraduate College of Sciences Po or one of Sciences Po's graduate schools ;
- An up-to-date curriculum vitae, including list of publications ;
- An invitation letter from a Sciences Po research centre.

Applications should be submitted by email to presage@sciencespo.fr

Applicants should feel free to reach out to Violette Toye, general secretary of the Gender Studies Programme violette.toye@sciencespo.fr.

Sciences Po is a bilingual university (English and French), French is therefore not required for application to this position but speaking one of the two languages is essential.

SCHEDULE

The deadline for applications is 5:00 p.m. CET Monday 11 September 2023.

A selection committee will meet in September 2023, and decisions will be communicated to applicants by Sciences Po shortly thereafter.